Joe was a humble, sincere man who had spent much of his life helping his widowed mother as the younger children grew up. He had great courage and good humor though his heart kept him from doing some of the heavier work. Joe was the son of Janett (Nettie) Thomas and George E. Coleman; he was born and raised in Heber City.

Alta and Joe had been married several years before her arthritis began to really be a problem. She had suffered Scarlet Fever when she was six years old and one of her ear drums was destroyed, this illness also triggered arthritis in her joints.

In spite of these ailments, Alta and Joe made a nice, pleasant home where it was a pleasure to visit.

Joe passed away on January 26, 1978, and Alta continued living in their home until ill health made her accept her younger brother's offer to live in his home in Lehi, Utah. She was there with Glen and his wife, Retta, for three years, then Glen suffered a stroke in January of 1984.

As Alta was unable to care for herself, and her dear sister-in-law was burdened with caring for Glen, Alta decided to return to Heber City and live at the Valley Care Center. She came about the 26 of Jan. 1984. She is looking forward to renewing interrupted friendships.

I was very happy to visit with Alta and to find that she is still the same cheerful, sweet person that I have come to know as a true friend.

Alta's living relatives are Thelma B. Whitlock of Salt Lake City; Lucian and Edith Bown of Manti; Glen and Retta Bown of Lehi; a dear sister-in-law of 90 years, Geneva B. Bown of Manti; and a dear brother-in-law of Manti; and many nieces and nephews. Her sister-in-law Fay McNaughtan and Jay of Heber City, and Ethel Simpson of Boise, Idaho.

It is good that Alta has so many friends with whom she can visit. Alta turned eighty last August and is as pleasant and interesting to visit with as ever. Welcome back to Heber Alta, we are happy to have you with us again.
